ProjectPromote 2012 Application

On behalf of VegNews Magazine, we're thrilled to announce the return of the wildly popular ProjectPromote. Since VegNews' inception in 2000, one of our fundamental goals has been to promote vegan organizations. With each issue, we remember this mission as we plan stories and themes.

Another way we accomplish this goal is to accept advertising. In a recent survey, we discovered an astonishing 95% of VegNews readers find the ads in VegNews useful, and an industry unparalleled 81% have purchased a product from a VegNews advertiser. We're very proud of these numbers, as we feel we're providing a great service to readers while helping to promote and grow vegan organizations.

As VegNews has grown from a black-and-white newsprint publication to a full-color, award-winning magazine, our ad rates have increased as circulation has grown. However, we realize the challenges non-profit organizations face and know that advertising in a national magazine isn't always feasible. We also realize how important advertising and marketing are to the growth and sustainability of non-profits. So we want to help.

VegNews will be awarding a one-year advertising campaign (including professional design services) to the organization our staff feels will most benefit from the exposure. The group must promote veganism to be considered. The contract plus design services is valued at more than $7,000.

To be considered, please submit responses to the the following questions by November 1, 2011. Applications should be submitted as a Word document to projectpromote@vegnews.com or sent to VegNews Media, attn:

ProjectPromote, 3505 20th Street, San Francisco, CA 94110.
